

Bittersweet and compelling, sentimental and smart, the Valley Advocate hails Carolyn Walker as having a “skilled, songwriting mind consciously crafting complex melodies and harmonies.” Her second solo album, “Incarnadine,” was recorded by Mark Thayer at Signature Sounds studio in the spring and summer of 2014, and features Boston-area songwriter Mark Erelli. "Incarnadine" was funded through a successful kickstarter campaign, with contributions from screenwriter and film director Joss Whedon (The Avengers, Firefly, Buffy the Vampire Slayer).

Carolyn performs throughout the Northeast as a solo artist in venues such as the famed Club Passim in Cambridge Mass., the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton, Mass., the Dream Away Lodge in the Berkshires, and Caffe Vivaldi in New York City.

Carolyn is also a founding member of the Woman Songwriter Collective. She has her Masters in Music Theory from the University of Massachusetts Amherst, and a BMus with teacher certificate also from UMass Amherst.
